As Master Gardeners, we are committed to educating the general public on sustainable horticulture and pest management practices based on traditional, current, and evolving research. We provide the public with hands-on, interactive experiences about research-based, sustainable gardening practices specific El Dorado County. IPM (Integrated Pest Management) is heavily incorporated into the educational and hands-on experiences as well as proper soil management, irrigation techniques, garden design and planting, the right plant for the right place, composting, weed management and so on. Many of our free public education classes on various home gardening topics are held in the garden and attendees really appreciate actually seeing and doing what they are learning.

On entering the demonstration garden, there is a welcoming kiosk where garden docents will direct you on your way through the garden as well as answer any questions you may have. Many docent-led tours are scheduled for various organizations within the county as well as further afar. Our annual spring plant sale will be on April 21 in the garden. This is a festive, well-known event and gardeners typically arrive early to shop! Come on out and enjoy touring this wonderful place!
